

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

ARAI Makoto, Prof. Dr. jur., is Professor of Law at the Institute for Advanced Studies of Business Law at the University of Tsukuba.

Focus of research: long-term care insurance law, adult guardianship law.

John Creighton CAMPBELL, Ph.D., is Professor of Political Science at the University of Michigan and has written on Japanese budgeting, old-age policy, and health policy as well as electoral behavior, trade conflict, and other topics.

Focus of research (currently): Japanese long-term care insurance.

Harald CONRAD, Dr. rer. pol., is Research Fellow at the German Institute for Japanese Studies (Deutsches Institut für Japanstudien) in Tōkyō. He studied Economics and Marketing at Cologne, Hitotsubashi, and Keiō University and received his Ph.D. in Economics from Cologne University with an award-winning thesis on pension reforms in Japan.

Focus of research: Japanese and comparative social policy, pension economics, senior citizen market.

Sabine FRÜHSTÜCK, Dr. phil., is Associate Professor of Modern Japanese Cultural Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Focus of research: sexuality, gender and colonialism, the military in present-day Japan, and social problems of modern and contemporary Japan.

KIMURA Rihito, LL.B., LL.M., is Professor of Bioethics and Law at the School of Human Sciences at Waseda University and Director of the International Institute of Bioethics and Bio-Law at Waseda University in Tōkyō. He is a former director of the Asian Bioethics Program, Kennedy Institute of Ethics, Georgetown University, USA.

Focus of research: bioethics.

Thomas KLIE, Prof. Dr. jur., holds the Chair in Public Law and Administration Sciences at the University of Applied Science in Freiburg (Evangelische Fachhochschule Freiburg). He studied Law, Sociology, and Administration Sciences in Hamburg and is currently the First Vice-President of the German Society of Gerontology.

Focus of research: civic society, gerontology, social law and politics.

Iris KNÜVER manages seminars on care for the frail elderly. She studied Education Sciences at the University of Dortmund and is a qualified nurse.

Focus of research: social gerontology.

KOJIMA Hiroshi, Ph.D., is Director of the Department of International Research and Cooperation at the National Institute of Population and Social Security Research (Kokuritsu Shakai Hoshō Jinkō Mondai Kenkyū-jo). He studied at Waseda University (Tōkyō) and Brown University (Providence, USA).

Focus of research: family demography, population policy.

Ralph LÜTZELER, Dr. phil., is Research Fellow (Wissenschaftlicher Mitarbeiter) at the Research Institute on Modern Japan (Forschungsstelle Modernes Japan) at Bonn University. He studied Geography and Japanese Studies at Bonn University. From 1993 to 1998 he was a Research Fellow at the German Institute for Japanese Studies in Tōkyō.

Focus of research: demography and geography of Japan.

Matthias MERFERT is currently in charge of the section “senior citizens policies / demographic change” at the German Social Democratic Party (SPD) Headquarters. He studied Education Sciences at the Universities of Bamberg and Dortmund and was Research Associate at the Institute of Gerontology at the University of Dortmund.

Focus of research: social gerontology.

Gerhard NAEGELE, Prof. Dr. rer. pol., is Professor for Social Gerontology at the University of Dortmund and Director of the Institute of Gerontology (Institut für Gerontologie) at the University of Dortmund.

Focus of research: Social gerontology and social policy.

Monika REICHERT, Dr. phil., is a scientific manager and researcher at the Institute of Gerontology (Institut für Gerontologie) at the University of Dortmund. She studied Psychology at the Universities of Giessen and Cologne.

Focus of research: social gerontology with special emphasis on aging and environment, long-term care and caregiving, social networks and social support.

Heinz ROTHGANG, Dr. rer. pol., is Assistant Professor at the Centre for Social Policy Research (Zentrum für Sozialpolitik), University of Bremen.

Focus of research: health economics, care economics, economics of aging, and social policy.

Winfried SCHMÄHL, Prof. Dr. rer. pol., is Professor of Economics and Director of the Economic Department of the Centre for Social Policy Research (Zentrum für Sozialpolitik), University of Bremen. Between 1984 and 2000 he was chairman of the Social Advisory Board of the German Federal Government.

Focus of research: economics of social security, pension reform, and economics of aging.

Paul TALCOTT, Ph.D., is Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science, Emory University, USA. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science from Harvard University in 1999, after which he was a post-doctoral fellow in the Program for U.S.-Japan Relations at Harvard University and a Japan Society for the Promotion of Science Fellow at the Institute of Social Science, University of Tōkyō.

Focus of research: politics of representation of organized interests in advanced industrial democracies, politics of health care reform in East Asia, and comparative health care policy.

Karin VEITH, Dr. oec. troph., is a staff member of the Federal Office for Building and Regional Planning (Bundesamt für Bauwesen und Raumordnung (BBR)), Unit I2 "Stadtentwicklung und Bodenmarkt" (Urban Development and Property Markets), Bonn. She studied Home Economics at the Universities of Munich and Giessen.

Focus of research: urban development (with special emphasis on the reconstruction of East German cities).