

CONTENTS

Introduction
Harald KÜMMERLE and Franz WALDENBERGER	7

Part I: Technological developments and methodology

Research Design in the Digital Age: Implementing Analysis of large Japanese Text Corpora using Topic Models on the web-platform TopicExplorer
Christian OBERLÄNDER	13
E-Learning and Gender: A Proposal for Three Types of Collaboration
Atsuko SANO	20

Part II: Research data and infrastructure

Sharing Social Science Data in Japan: JSPS's Plan for a Federated Data Catalog
Yukio MAEDA	27
How e-infrastructure could transform research activities
Miho FUNAMORI	32

Part III: New research objects and perspectives through interconnectivity

Insights into the Digital Transformation From the Fields of Medicine and Healthcare in Japan
Susanne BRUCKSCH	43
Politics in the Age of Connective Cynicism
Fabian SCHÄFER	50

Part IV: Shifting boundaries of the social sciences and humanities (SSH)

Collaborative and constructive research design in the digital age
Cornelius SCHUBERT	61

Social Sciences and the Humanities in the age of Big Data. What is at stake? Martina FRANZEN	66
Knowledge production and the role of SSH in the digital age Franz WALDENBERGER	72
Postscript: Comparative and historical perspectives on the digital transformation Harald KÜMMERLE	81
List of authors	85

LIST OF FIGURES

Christian Oberländer: Figure 1	16
Christian Oberländer: Figure 2	17
Christian Oberländer: Figure 3	18
Fabian Schäfer: Figure 1	51